RIPP BARAT SCOOPS COLORADO

WEIMARANER REGIONAL FIELD TRIAL

RIPP BARAT, owned and handled by Mrs. Betty Kenly, Phoenix, Arizona, astonished contenders and gallery by placing three times out of three in the Weimaraner Club of America's Colorado-Wyoming Regional Field Trial May 31-April 1, run on the Rocky Mountain Arsenal Grounds, Denver. No "push-overs" in any of the three stakes as Ripp ran against field trial champion Weimaraners, German Shorthairs and Brittanys — fast company, indeed.

Complete placements were not available as we go to press; however, interested members may find the complete results in the American Field and/or the next issue of the Weimaraner Club magazine.

Amateur All Age

2 Weimaraners — 3 German Shorthaired Pointers — 1 Brittany — 1 Vizsla

First Place: Ripp Barat, owned and handled by Betty Kenly.

(a FT Ch Brittany was one of the entries.)

Open Gun Dog

Second Place: Ripp Barat, owned and handled by Betty Kenly.

(Among the entries were 3 F T Ch

Weimaraners)

Amateur Gun Dog

Third Place: Ripp Barat, Owned and handled by Betty Kenly.

The Vizsla Club extends sincere congratulations to Ripp and Betty Kenly for this fine record.

All stakes were well represented. The Open All Age had 9 entries; Amateur All Age 7; Open Gun Dog 18; Open Puppy 12; Amateur Gun Dog 12.

German Shorthaired Pointer Club of Colorado
AKC Licensed Trial, Denver, March 24-25

Ripp Barat ran in the Open Gun Dog Stake, one of 17 entries, but failed to place. His ground course was good but one unproductive was charged against him. In this stake there were 11 GSHP, 3 Weimaraners, 2 Brittanys, 1 Vizsla.

The Owner's View

By Betty Kenly

Ripp Barat ran in the Shorthair Trials on the Rocky Mountain Arsenal Grounds March 24th and did a fine job excepting for one unproductive which I blame partly on myself and partly on the altitude. However, the next weekend, he ran in three stakes in the Colorado-Wyoming Region Weimaraner Club Trials and made out like a bandit — 3 places in three stakes — did a beautiful job and, I believe, was the only dog to place in more than two stakes. Winning the Amateur All Age was a big thrill, of course, but his placements in the Open Gun Dog and Amateur Gun Dog Stakes were equally exciting.

I can't praise the regional Weimaraner Club in Denver nearly enough for the success of their trial and the wonderful treatment I received. . . . they even acted like they were glad I won three places.

As you know, I usually do it alone (trials) and most of these clubs have bent over backwards to make me welcome. It is so encouraging to be warmly received and made welcome by complete strangers.

A great big thanks to Bob and Judy Holcomb for treating me like one of the family the week I was in Denver.

Does Own Shooting In Amateur Stakes

In the Amateur Gun Dog Stake, the handler shot his own birds and it nearly scared me to death since I doubt if I had shot a bird in 15 years but, as I have said before, I seem to have more viscera than brains, and it proved to be more fun than any stake I entered.

Yes; much to my surprise, I got both birds. The first one I pulverized — there wasn't enough left for the dog to retrieve — and the second one I hardly hurt and Ripp brought it in alive. I really proves to be fun.

As a suggestion, we might consider such a stake in our future Amateur Gun Dog Trials.

(Editor's Note: We have argued the pros and cons about the handler shooting his own birds in amateur stakes; however, there is the matter of safety and insurance fees to be considered. No doubt, in the future, we will make it optional for the individual handlers.)

MEMBERSHIP RENEWALS

For the past year, Treasurer Sylvia Chatfield has been mailing dues notices one month in advance of expiration date and following up with a post card reminder late in the twelfth month. Renewals are promptly reported to the Secretary and so recorded.

To avoid disappointing a member who may have overlooked remitting dues to the Treasurer, the VIZSLA NEWS is mailed for two succeeding months. After that moratorium, the member's name is removed from the active list. Any member reinstating within two or three months is brought up to date with the NEWS providing there is sufficient supply.

A member deciding to drop his membership can be very helpful if he will send the Secretary a post card or note explaining his decision to drop out. Constructive criticism always is welcome and helps keep the Club and its services alert.

Treasurer Sylvia Chatfield writes (April 12) that there is a 3 foot snowbank between house and kennel after another snowstorm and (she) hates every shovelfull. . . opening baseball game postponed.

Director Ann Chelini on way south hopes to call on Betty Kenly in Phoenix. . . among other things to discuss Club matters.

Bernard Hambleton, Kirkland, Washington, has been elected President, Washington Black Angus Association. Due to new office, member Hambleton regretfully declines nomination as Regional V-P Vizsla Club but promises to do all he can to encourage memberships and requests applications.

When I first wrote you it was to inquire about a Vizsla and where I could see one. You were kind enough to send me all information and, soon afterwards, I purchased a fine dog in Cornwall, Pa.

My main interest since I was a young girl is bird hunting and I trained him for this purpose which he did very well the next fall. In fact, I never enjoyed hunting as much as I did this last fall. . . I shot my quota. Once I shot at a pheasant three times without making a clean hit. Caesar trailed the bird and within a half hour I had the pheasant in my bag.

People in this area never have heard of a Vizsla and are amazed when they see Caesar.

Thank you for sending me the VIZSLA NEWS. I know how busy you must be. I think you are doing a fine job.
Mt. Joy, Pa. Janice Kehler

A note from Lt. Col. Robert A. Carter from Isle of Capri, Naples, Florida.

Thanks for forwarding the VIZSLA NEWS. We always enjoy reading them very much and finding out what other Vizsla owners are doing.

We plan on attending the Vizsla Trials May 5-6 and hope to meet you there.
Gary, Texas Roy & Marge Widener

— — I had a session of flu after the Natl. Capitol Show (and I had been so superior as I had flu shots last fall and have been fine all winter.)

Very pleased to see the Vizsla column in the Sporting Group issue of Popular Dogs!

With that I could make the trial and meeting but just cannot arrange it now. It would make a wonderful trip to combine a visit with my parents in N. Kansas and the meeting.

A piece on tracking shortly. . . .
Vienna, Va. Irene McElwain

Thank you for inviting me to join the Vizsla Club. Form and check on the way to Minneapolis.

Kansas City, Mo. Don Lawrence

I am sure that I will be unable to attend the Board meeting and trial altho I would like to very much. I would just like to be there, period.

I think every member should try to get a member. This would double the membership (and give the Club some financial stability). I do not think the present dues are too high.

Surely do hope the trials go off well and that there will be a good attendance. I certainly will plan to attend the National this fall for I have a dog or two that I would like to enter.
Augusta, Ga. Dr. Hayward Phillips

Long made plans for trout fishing in the mountains prevent us from attending the trials and meeting; otherwise we would be there.
San Francisco, Calif. Aileen Stewart

Please send me six more AKC application blanks.

I enjoy the VIZSLA NEWS very much, especially the articles from Hungarian breeders.
Butterfield, Minn. Martin O Holte

Jane Graf sends an assortment of clippings and notes for the NEWS. Busy with housework, children, kennels and as Field Trial Secretary (Lincoln, Nebr., May 5-6) — (They) have three children, 9 Vizslas. chickens, ducks, geese, horses, couple hundred pigeons, a few chinchillas — and plan to raise some chukar, pheasant and quail this year. (Ed Note: and I think I have my hands full.)
Seward, Nebr.

I realize that the hour is late for Vizsla registrations with AKC; nevertheless, I am beating the bushes to see if I can locate any unregistered dogs. So far we have been able to refer three to AKC — Would you please forward about six registration forms to me. . .

Long Beach, Calif. Walter R. Campbell

Am enclosing check for my dues and will appreciate your sending me a couple dozen application blanks — I will try to get some money coming in the til as I realize the expense is getting terrific getting out the VIZSLA NEWS. . . . I think the last two issues were the best I have seen to date.

Betty (Mrs. Holcomb), our twin girls and I will be at the trials May 5 and 6.
Englewood, Colo. J. R. Holcomb

Being drafted to serve as a member of the Board of Directors came as quite a surprise and surely more welcome than my first draft notice. Will do my best to attend meetings; however, due to my duty tours may not always make it.

We hope to attend the spring trial but may not be able to make it at the last moment. The National is different as I am on vacation then and have time to prepare for it.

Alan Jacobs, Lincolnwood, Illinois, has given me much time and cooperation in attempting to get our Ill-Ind Region organized and he is an ardent Vizsla owner.

We now understand some of your problems much better since trying to organize the regional club. For some reason, getting answers to letters is a most difficult task: out of 35 or 40 letters we have received four replies. Anyway, we'll keep trying.

Bob Grimes Class Puppy Killed

This week I had the unpleasant task of burying the puppy which I have praised so often (14 months old female trial prospect). She somehow opened the gate to her kennel while I was away and the inevitable happened down on the road.

I don't know if I think more of my dogs than other people think of theirs but burying her was the hardest thing that I have had to do during my lifetime. I would not have felt so bad had it been my other bitch or my pointer. There is no doubt in my mind that she would have developed into one of the best Vizslas in the country. She ran as big as all-out-doors and with more drive than any Vizsla I ever have seen. I really had plans for her.
Rt. 1, Toney, Ala. Robert Grimes ture's rules are inflexible. Disease, famine, predators, decimate over-populated wildlife. It is apodictic. Ask any breeder of domestic animals what happens unless he is alert with vaccines, antibiotics, food.

"Do-Gooders" could achieve more lasting results if they directed their sympathies in a more practical direction: educating duck and geese hunters to use retrievers would save tens of thousands of water fowl every year; the use of pointing dogs in the fields and woods would reclaim hundreds of wounded birds; the preservation and protection of water holes, feeding and nesting grounds would assure reproduction of the species. But so much less dramatic!

The Associated Sportsmen of California are raising a meagre $5,000.00 fund to protect the rights and privileges of hunters; to protect the water holes and feeding grounds of migratory fowl; to meet legislative obligations.

A dollar bill — or more — will be appreciated and wisely used.

VIZSLA CLUB FIELD TRIALERS
WELCOME TO LINCOLN, NEBRASKA
By Jane Graf

The Cornhusker State is famous for hospitality and a very good example is the interest Dr. Earl Brown, President, Irish Setter Club of Nebraska, is taking in the arrangements to assure a successful trial May 5 & 6. Dr. Brown, Richard Armstrong, our Field Marshal, and F. T. Judge J. W. Dewey, have appointed themselves a "Committee of Three" to expedite plans and make arrangements for lunches on the grounds so that every Vizsla Club visitor will have an enjoyable visit.

"Pete" Czura, well known sporting dog editor of Southern Outdoors and syndicated dog and sports columnist, is sending out news releases about the trial to all area newspapers and will attend the trial to gather news and pictures for a national feature he is writing.

Mrs. Ann Byers, Mrs. Paul Kisner and your reporter will be on hand as hostesses from Friday afternoon until the last visitor departs Sunday evening. We urge you to let us help make your weekend something to remember.

General Jacl Pearl, S A C Base, Omaha, made up and contributed a check list of A K C field requirements as a guide and everything seems to be falling into place. Quail and chukar ordered; Game Commission alerted to band the birds.

(Editor's Note: Belated but warm congratulations to General Pearl on his promotion. Last time we saw then Col. Pearl was when he judged a Brittany field trial at K. C., Mo. If Harry Holt was living, he would be very pleased too.)

Points of Interest

Lincoln is a typical plains-state city: wide streets, long blocks, with most of the business district confined to O Street (the main street) and the adjacent streets. Many "must see" points of interest are within a few minutes walk from the downtown section.

The State Capitol is one of the nation's most impressive seats of state government. Immediately south of the Capitol is the Governor's Mansion. The University of Nebraska campus is two blocks north which includes the Planetarium and the University's famous State Museum. The State Historical Society Building is on R Street, adjacent to the Campus, where the past and present of Nebraska's history is pictorially presented in exhibits. The Hallam Nuclear Generating Plant is a few miles south of Lincoln where abundant power will be produced under private ownership. The Lincoln Air Force Base is north and west of the city.

There are two zoos; two lakes; two principal parks and the new City Auditorium where diversified entertainment is available throughout the year. Nebraska Wesleyan University and Union College, in addition to the University and the Agricultural College, make Lincoln an important seat of learning.

Vizsla Club members are invited to make a quick tour of these principal points before leaving Lincoln. Descriptive folders will be available at the Reception Center in the Buffalo Motel and the hostesses will be glad to chart a 30 minute auto tour.

Judges Dinner

One half barbecued chicken, potatoes, vegetable, salad, rolls and butter, dessert and coffee is the menu. Cost is $2.00 per plate, including tips. The barbecued chicken is a specialty of the "Ikes" and Mr. Mosby, president of the Izaak Walton League personally intends to supervise the service.

Dinner will be served between 6:30 and 7:00 PM, immediately after the last brace Saturday and everyone is urged to come-as-you-are since the dinner and meeting place is en route to the motel.

Everyone planning on attending the trial and the dinner is asked to advise the F. T. Chairmaon (M. D. Graf) by April 30th how many will be in his dinner party that the chef may know how many dinners to plan. Please include this memo with your trial entries or mail a postcard to M. D. Graf, RFD 3, Seward, Nebraska. We would be unhappy if we were unable to serve everyone who came to dinner.

Motel reservations also should be made without delay. If everyone comes who has promised to attend, the motel will be taxed to capacity and we do hope to have everyone under one roof for the informal get-together Friday night at the motel.

See you Friday?

GOOD READING

ARTHUR KONYOT: THE WHITE RIDER

In collaboration with William D. Reichmann

Here is the fabulous story of a fabulous man that will appeal to and delight readers of all ages —and it's true. Arthur Konyot relates the story of his life to William D. Reichmann who skillfully develops it into autobiographical form: sixty years of exciting, adventure-some circus and horse show life in 19 countries and on three continents.

Celebrated equestrian showman Arthur Konyot, senior surviving member of a renowned Hungarian family of artistes, was born into circus life. His parents owned the Cirkus Leopold — a traveling show typical of the small European circuses from which many famous performing families originated. The Konyos — six boys and six girls — became internationally recognized as a family of incomparable bareback riders and performers and their unique story unfolds in this absorbing tale. Here is the romance of circus life with its triumphs and pathos; successes and reverses; its courage and resourcefulness.

Through its pages, illustrated with 33 full pages of photographs, move fascinating characters and famous names — from the Hagenbachs, the Rancys, the Buschs, of Europe to the Ringlings and Norths of North America, to Arthur Godfrey whose show horse Goldie, Konyot trained at Beacon Hill farm.

Today, at 72, Arthur Konyot operates a riding stable at Sarasota, Florida, traditional home of circuses and circus families.

Our own celebrated Elizabeth Mihalyi designed the chapter headings and illustrated the story with her drawings. The London-born artist, who started her art training on her father's estate in Hungary, has become famous in America as a portrait painter of people and horses and dogs. Among her better known portraits are Arthur Godfrey on his horse Goldie; Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman and Mrs. Freeman; Mr. and Mrs. A. Q. Schimmel — hotel chain; Mrs. Myra Curtis, Chicago; Helen Morrison and her Irish Setter, Philadelphia, and many other well known individuals. Her illustrations have appeared in Town & Country, Western Horseman, Your Pony and Pony Record.

Mrs. Mihalyi maintains a studio at Woodside, Calif., and Wayzata, Minn.

William Reichmann, the collaborator, is well known in the Chicago area as a breeder and exhibitor of Arabian horses and as a contributor to various magazines. His home is on a farm near Barrington, Illinois.

The regular trade edition is $10.00 and the limited, autographed edition $15.00. Publishers are Hill and Dale Press, Barrington, Ill.

The Vizsla News will be glad to order ARTHUR KONYOT: THE WHITE RIDER for Club members. Please enclose check with typed or printed address.

HISTORY REPEATS ITSELF

During the running of the second Weimaraner National Field Trials at Crab Orchard, Illinois, in 1950 or 1951, we overheard one of a group of Brittany field trialers remark, "Why; that's an 'old man's' dog."

The Weimaraners were working a thick, matted tall grass course so dense that the dogs were partly hidden. It is true that the dogs were close working (the average Weimaraner of that era did not have express speed and orbital range) but we doubt if any dog could have exhibited horizon-reaching range in that cover.

Since those days the field trial Weimaraner has been bred smaller, faster, wider. Many of today's owners never saw, or have forgotten, the Weimaraner of the late 40's and early 50's. As a matter of fact, it is only in the past six or seven years that breeders have been striving for better range and field abilities.

What is true of the Weimaraner has been true of the German Shorthaired Pointer — and the Brittany, if you please — all European gun dog breeds were close working, biggish dogs for that was the type of hunting they were developed for in their respective native states. Today, in America, not every man wants an Open All Age field dog — he doesn't. For every one that does want a dog to work on the horizon there are ten who are satisfied with the breed just as it is.

Betty Kenly's terrific Ripp recently rudely opened the eyes of the Colorado-Wyoming field trial fraternity by his tremendous drive, wide range and intense desire. Some of the people there remarked that the Vizslas they had seen (several years ago) were too close and therefore, supposedly, not particularly attractive. History repeating itself: the early Shorthairs, the Weimaraners and now the Vizsla drawing the same criticism. Today's owner of the wide field trial type dog forgetting that not over ten years ago his breed drew the same comments.

As successive generations of American bred Vizslas appear on the field trial courses, there is no question that each generation will show more drive, more range. Selective breeding, and advantageous training, will see to that.

Responsible Vizsla breeders today are trying to produce dogs with an intense desire to hunt, with conformation and style, sound in body, weight and height well within the Standard, biddable, without sacrificing the distinctive disposition and intelligence that is characteristic of the breed. They have come a long way in eight years.

SNIPE HUNTING IN THE LAND OF THE VIZSLAS

By Gaza Katona

To most of us "tenderfeet," snipe-hunting has one connotation: the old trick of having novice campers stand out in a lonely spot in the woods during the dark of night, holding an empty sack and a flashlight with which to entice those imaginary snipes which never show up. All tomfoolery aside, though, there is a real sport called Snipe-Hunting which is avidly followed in the Old Country. As I reminisce about the many different kinds of hunting experiences which I had an opportunity to enjoy with my Vizsla "Frici" in Hungary, the one which conjures up the most pleasant thoughts is that of snipe-hunting in the hills of Budakeszi, Nagykovacsi, and Torokbalint west of Budapest in the company of my good friend and veteran Vizsla handler "Mike" Kende.

The sport is associated with the spring season, and like Spring, snipe-hunting stirs one's latent yearning for the out-of-doors after a long winter of little activity. The snipe (or woodcock — a medium-sized bird which is long of beak and short of tail) begins to wend its way northward through Central Europe about mid-March each year. True to form, these birds invariably follow the same route year after year, so that seasoned hunters can almost predict the exact spots over which the snipe will fly once the "advance scouts" of the flock put in their appearance in the area, in similar fashion to the famed Swallows of Capistrano. Word soon spreads among snipe fanciers that the birds are in transit, and small parties of hunters hie their way into the woods fringing Budapest in the early evening hours to sit and wait in silence for the coveted game.

Unlike hunting for most other types of game, "szalonkazar" (as snipe-hunting is called in Hungarian) is confined mostly to the brief period of dusk lasting about a half-hour before and after sunset. This is the time when the snipes begin to descend from their high flight to roost in the trees for the night. The hunters take their positions in groups of two or three, and with at least one Vizsla on hand, at scattered points in the clearings within the forest, many of the men having brought along leather-seated tripod stools for themselves, and a small rug for the dogs to sit out the wait in comfort. As the last rays of daylight fade into darkness, everyone remains in silence, for the slightest strange noise may frighten off the snipes. Even the Vizslas sense the significance of the quiet atmosphere and lay in "drop" position, with eyes alert on their masters, ready to respond to the signal to fetch. (For this particular phase, the Vizsla must be retrained not to move when the hunter raises his gun in shooting position.) Only the sounds of other wild-life can be heard in the stillness, for there is an air of calmness and serenity which settles on all and even makes one oblivious to the cooling darkness.

The silence is not only desirable for its esthetic effect but is necessary in order that the hunters may be able to discern the first subdued swishing sounds which alert them to the approach of the snipes as the birds swoop down into the trees. Shot guns are held in readiness, and as the shadowy forms of the birds swiftly come into sight, the silence is suddenly broken by scattered gun shots here and there as straining eyes pick out the fleeting targets. Then, it is all over in short order — except for the retrieving of the game by the Vizslas and the boasting or alibiing by the participants. The Vizslas are only too eager to obey the commands, "keresd" ("find") and "hozid ide" ("bring it here"). In spite of the darkness and with only a general hint of direction by the pointing finger of their masters, the dogs make the sweep of the woods and bring in the bagged game. If in luck, the group may tally about a half dozen or ten snipes; but this may be the exception rather than the rule, for — like the proverbial gunnysack brand of "snipe-hunting" — the score may be nil.

But luck or no luck, the group calls it a night as far as the hunting is concerned and everybody repairs to the nearest hunting lodge, or the peasant house of one of the local hunters, to shake off the chill of the night with a healthy toast of fine Hungarian wine or "barack" (apricot brandy). The evening of snipe-hunting is never complete, though, without a few refurbished accounts of more bountiful hunts, the glorious feats of favorite Vizslas, and humorous incidents of the "good ol' days." The snipe bags may still be empty of game, but the snipe-hunters are bound to depart homeward with their reward of an evening filled with pleasant memories the glow of fine companionship of men and Vizsla dogs.

ELIZABETH MIHALYI (Mrs. 3 Woodside, California — Portrait artist, specializing in people and horses. Striking personality, tremendous vitality, great courage.

Fleeing from the Mihalyi estate in Hungary as the Russians advanced, Mrs. Mihalyi led a caravan of neighbors and retainers — farm carts loaded with personal possessions and food — to eventual sanctuary with the British forces in Austria. Traveling roads and lanes by night, hiding out by day to escape strafing by planes and betrayal by informers; encouraging, forcing, cajoling, week after arduous week, Mrs. Mihalyi finally led her charges to freedom.

Her three sons and husband remained behind: two sons later escaping and eventually joining their mother in America; one son still living in Hungary and the husband released through death not long after her escape. With her, as companion and personal guardian, was Panni XV, the family Vizsla, who became Vizsla No. 2 in the Austrian Stud Book and the mother of the foundation Vizslas in Austria.

While in the British zone, Elizabeth obtained food and some essential comforts by sketching and painting the British Mess Sergeants. It was here that she began to use her native talents as an artist which had been developed by study at Notre Dame, near Budapest, under some of the leading Hungarian tutors. She was a member of the Association of Professional Fine Arts Artists at Graz, Austria.

Accepting an opportunity to immigrate to Detroit, Mrs. Mihalyi moved to Omaha later and there was joined by her son Thomas. Lewis eventually arrived via Canada and now the reunited family make their homes in California. Shortly after her arrival in Omaha, an exhibition of her paintings was held in Washington, D.C. which was favorably received and led to commissions in Nebraska and, eventually, other states. Among national personages painted by Mrs. Mihalyi are Arthur Godfrey, and an ex-Governor of Minnesota.

Mrs. Mihalyi, one of the incorporators of the Vizsla Club, holds membership card No. 1.
