REMINDER

WARNING: Warm weather is again the order of the day all over the nation and with it comes the danger of dogs dying in cars that are left for "just a minute." As we all know, the temperature in a car can soar in seconds, causing brain damage and finally agonizing death. Watch your dogs and warn others of this potentially fatal mistake on the part of well-meaning pet owners.

OUR COVER PICTURE

FLD. CH. REBEL ROUSER WINNESHIEK MAC
"Mac"

REBEL ROUSER WINNESHIEK MAC achieved his field championship at the age of 3½ years, brought to the necessary level of performance by his owner, trainer, and handler, Kelley Donham.

From the day "Mac" came as a pup to Winneshiek Kennels, Kelley knew he would become a field champion. At 16 months of age, "Mac" won the 1975 V.C.A. Derby stake. He won five other Derby stakes, mostly All-Breed events, to become the Number 3 V.C.A. Puppy/Derby behind a litter-mate and a half-sister, both professionally campaigned. In 1977-78, he won three Gun Dog stakes to achieve his field championship.

"Mac" is a hard-driving, wide-ranging dog who knows where to go for birds and does it. At home, he is a gentle, affectionate Vizsla. He is at stud to O.F.A. approved bitches.

ALL OR NONE OF THE ABOVE

(A SIMPLE TEST FOR VIZSLA OWNERS)

by

CARL J. FREEMAN

1. Numerical grading of subjective material by numerous people will be:
   a. Usually consistent and predictable.
   b. Usually inconsistent and subject to many variations.
   c. Usually within an easily defined range.
   d. Subject to a Gaussian distribution.
   e. All of the above.

2. Vizsla Breed Improvement should include:
   a. Developing the natural qualities of the Breed.
   b. Continual improvement in the "bird sense" of all Vizslas.
   c. Retention of a temperament defined as lively, gentle-mannered, and demonstratively affectionate.
   d. An evaluation of Vizslas by all aspects of the standard as currently defined.
   e. All of the above.

3. V.C.A. Breed Improvement is:
   a. A well thought-out program which fosters the improvement of all aspects of the Vizsla.
   b. A meaningful, well-defined program --- easily understood, even by the novice breeder.
   c. A program which recognizes the need for evaluating the hunting abilities of the Vizsla.
   d. A program which recognizes that a Vizsla should be representative of the standard as currently defined.
   e. A tally sheet of registration numbers that have little or no meaning.

Now that you've all passed the test, let's discuss the results. It's simple --- the V.C.A. Breed Improvement program is meaningless. I do not mean to be critical of the B.I.C. chairmen, and I recognize the many hours they have contributed, but having been constrained by meaningless criteria, their results are the same.

The V.C.A. Breed Improvement program, as seen by the outside world, is simply a compilation of registration numbers received as a result of radiological evaluation of hip X-Rays. Though the intent is good, the results are a mockery of a "breed improvement" program. First of all, as indicated by the first question, the grading scheme for the X-Rays is the result of numerical grades assigned to very subjective material. The evaluation is done by radiologists who are probably very competent, if not experts in their field. However, they, as all persons, have biases and opinions which form their personal evaluation criteria. Therefore, what is a 6 on a scale of 10 to one doctor may be a 5 to a second or an 8 to yet a third. These inconsistencies and variations become extremely important when at some point they determine whether or not a dog receives V.C.A. endorsement for breeding. Yet, we the V.C.A., base our entire Breed Improvement program on these numbers.

Mathematical analyses of selective breeding programs have shown them to be statistically insignificant. This means that there has not been enough difference in the incidence of dysplasia in litters from "clear" dogs versus marginal or even "bad" dogs to arrive at a meaningful conclusion.

It will never happen because of the many fine, personal breed improvement programs practiced by V.C.A. members, but if we take the "official" V.C.A. program to its ultimate end, making the assumption that "clear dogs" = "clear dogs," we could end up with a dog with perfect hips who is afraid of birds and conforms more to the beagle standard than a Vizsla. That's because none of that makes any difference to V.C.A. --- just hips.

To get back to reality, it's time for some drastic changes in the V.C.A. Breed Improvement. We cannot rely solely on hip X-Ray analyses. We must include many more characteristics of the Vizsla if we are to have a meaningful, useful program. Many members do practice a very comprehensive breed improvement program, but can be cut short by one single aspect of a dog's overall capability and physical standard. That single measure of hip dysplasia, is defined by men who have never seen the dog on the bench or in the field and don't even know what is expected of the dog.

By our official V.C.A. criterion, a dog could have one eye, no nose, and have a purple coat, but if he has a registration number, he goes on the list of dogs approved for breeding by the V.C.A. Then, even if he produces a dysplastic puppy, he stays on the list approved for further breeding.

Certainly the many experienced people in our Club do look at all aspects of a dog before breeding, but I repeat for emphasis, they can be prevented from breeding an otherwise superior dog merely for this marginal and singular condition of dysplasia. How about the new Vizsla owners who have never been to a show or field trial? They look upon this registration list as the only blessing they need to grind out litters, which may be detrimental to our breed. They have no other guidelines to turn to.

My V.C.A. membership may be revoked, but I'll not hesitate to breed a dog with exceptional qualities, even if there are some abnormalities in the hips. What use is a dog with "perfect" hips if he cannot find a bird? In our attempt to suppress dysplasia, how many times have we sacrificed other exceptional qualities that we really wanted? Why not let those good qualities be a part of our criteria for breeding?

It's time for the V.C.A. to define and implement a comprehensive Breed Improvement program. As a start, we could require of a dog certain minimal performances in the field and in shows before endorsement for breeding by the V.C.A. Then, as we gain experience and technology, we should define and test certain specific points which really affect what our succeeding generations of Vizslas are going to be. Hip analysis should be one of these points, but not the only one. From all the experienced field trialers, hunters, obedience and conformation people in our Club, certainly we can arrive at some evaluation criteria that would lend some credence to our program!

This subject has been tabled too many times at Board meetings and at annual membership meetings. The V.C.A. Board and officers must take positive steps now to have such a program and eliminate the waste of manpower and newsprint that have thus far been the extent of breed improvement. If you question my assertions, sit down and write your own definition of what you want from the dogs you breed, and then compare it to the official V.C.A. position. There will be quite a difference!

Incidentally, my answers to the quiz are: 1 - b, 2 - e, 3 - e.

"Poppy"

"Poppy" finished her Field Championship at the October, 1977, Vizsla Club of Eastern Iowa trial, handled as always by her trainer, Harold Wingerter. For over two years, she has ranked as the No. 1 Field Bitch in the country.

On April 7, 1978, at the Eastern Iowa Spring trial, "Poppy" finished her Amateur Field Championship in a blaze of glory with a 3-point major. She had just completed two cross-country plane trips. She is seven years old, and she was four weeks pregnant at the time. That's what we call a champion!

"Poppy's" proud owner is Marilyn Fowler.
